can be secured for the purpose. The physicians have invited the co-operation of the first in the afternoon. Mr. Rogers said that there was robbery connected with the fire, and the building cas undoubtedly burned to cover up the evidence of theft, although very little booty was obtained.

A little of the office furniture was all that was savel. Angur holes had been bored in every drawer of the standing desk, but there was nothing of value to the thieves in the drawers. The cash register was broken open and the money it contained, which was less then one dollar, was taken. It is plain that robbery prompted the more serious origins. Mr. Rogers says that a larger building will soon be erected on the same location.

A Relic of Barbarism.!

A Relic of Barbarism.!

At a recent meeting of passenger agents representing the big rairoads of the country a set of uniform rules and regulations were gdopted defining and governing the baggage privileges of the traveling public. The number of pounds of luggage, the limit of size, the accommodations for dogs, guns, licycles and canary birds, the system of through checking, the requirements of identifying baggage when checks are lost, are all minutely stipulated. But in addition to these rational and salutary regulations is a reannouncement of the old rule requiring two full-fare, first class passenger tickets ment of the old rule requiring two full-fare, first class passenger tickets for every cornse, one for the remains carried in the baggage car, with a right to 159 pounds of baggage free for the deceased and the other for an accompanying passenger in the ceach. If there is one thing which our rall-roads are more backward than in another it is in this obsolets method of transporting dead bodies. Why should the fiction be preserved that the corpse should travel by rail on the same basis as a live person, when the fiction is maintained in no other public conveyance? Why should the rall-roads in this twentieth century go through the motions of carrying 150 pounds of baggage free for someone who has no use for paggage at all? who has no use for baggage at all?
Why should a corpse have to go into the baggage car, anyway, along with the trunks, sample cases, dogs, guns, bicycles and canary birds? — Omaha Bee.

Training Cooks in England.

The opening in London of the technical school for training boys as cooks, established by the common council, marks the beginning of a novel experiment in industrial education, from the Anglo-Saxon point of view.

In the Latin countries, as in Switzerland and Germany, cooking is a recognized vocation for men and is entered through a regular apprentice-cognized vocation for men and is entered through a regular apprenticeship. It has hitherto made less appeal to the English temperament, and in England, as here, the percentage of native-born cooks, except in chophouses or restaurants of like character, has been small. Cooking in its higher branches has been virtually monopolized by foreigners.

At the London school the bistruction will be both practical and theoretical. The course will cover a period of three years and will embrace all the details of the art from samp to sauce making and including the preparation of desserts, the purchase of supplies and culinary economy, French will be taught as "the universal language of the kitchen." and the graduate will be presumed to be equally competent to broil a steak or write a menu card in the choicest culinary diction.—N. Judge Baldwin's Mistake.

The Middletown Press says that Judge Baldwin is making a mistake in not stating what he will do with a public utilities bill in case he should be elected. The position of Judge Baldwin on this question is most unfeathwin on this question is most un-fortunate. He knows what the limita-tions of the state law are in reference to supervising public service corpora-tions, but he has so far refused to explain away the doubts he has rais-ed. His indefiniteness will cost him some votes on election day.

Not Quite Satisfied.

We distrust the evidence on which We distrust the evidence on which report is made that the school children of Waterbury are more backward than those of any other Connecticut city. We doubt whether a comparative study of conditions is made with sufficient uniformity to warrant a positive judgment. Fair Haven.—Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Bishop are visiting relatives at Groton, where there is good mackerel fishing at present.

Candidate Hunter of the socialist party in this state, in a card to the Hartford Courant, corrects a statement which he had made in one of his speeches to the effect that in the recent fight on Cannon in the house all the Connecticut congressmen voted against the reform of the rules committee, except Congressmen Hill, and "he didn't vote," leaving the empression that Mr. Hill dodged the issue. Mr. Hunter calls attention to the fact that Mr. Hill has informed him that when the vote was taken he (Hill) "was ill a thousand miles or more away from Washington." There never has been any doubt as to where never has been any doubt as to where Mr. Hill stood or stands on the Can-non question. He alone has stood up successfully against Capnon's bulldozsuccessfully against Carnon's bulldoz-ing methods, although the speaker, having the power, has been able to shut him out from service where he would have been valuable to the country. The Courant appends a note to the communication of Mr. Hunter in which it same. in which it says:
"The Connecticut congressmen may the third and fourth degrees upon six have been slow on the Cannon matter, hut it is the belief of The Courant that, to use a current phrase, they have got there just the same, so far as his interests are concerned. If Mr.

Hunter wants to be up to date, let him ask each candidate how he stands today as to Cannon.—Bridgeport Standard.
